Excellence in NPC governance

The Field Band Foundation is one of the few non-profit companies in SA to consistently obtain unqualified annual financial audits, always from a global "Big 5" auditing house. A multiplicity of supporter relationships is rigorously managed to ensure the efficient use of resources, transparent accountability, and appropriate brand alignment to mutual benefit.

Each partnership includes comprehensive, bespoke reporting, while full public annual reporting goes beyond statutory obligations to embrace relevant IFRS standards, along with guidelines of the Institute of Directors' third report on corporate governance in South Africa ("King 3").

To examine the Foundation's oversights, stakeholder relationship management, governing bodies, and measured impact, read our current Report to Society \(including full audited financial statements\) here...

Blast from the past

If you'll excuse the somewhat poor sound quality of this clip kindly sent in by an audience member, then treat yourself to the short FBF performance that wowed the 2009 National Tattoo. Click here...

New focus, new platforms

We start this year of modernising the Foundation's approach and operations with a new website that makes it easier to keep track of our work. You'll find it cleaner, simpler in focus, efficient in easy access to the info you need.

"FBF Online" will be your hub of current news and ideas, a base for efficient FBF multi-media, including often-changing Facebook and Twitter platforms.

Details of relevant FBF social media sites are found in this e-zine, and you may enjoy your new Foundation website, brought to you thanks to a generous web design sponsorship from the diamond people of De Beers, at www.fieldband.org.za
